LARGEST CIRCULATION OF ANY NEWSPAPER IN NORTHEASTERN CALIFORNIA

65th Year, Number 36 | Truckee, Nevada County, California, Thursday, November 2, 1933 | Established 1869

STATE CAPITOL NEWS

By MELVIN LORD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 2—(UP)—State and federal governments are becoming more closely linked than ever before as a result of the recovery program.

In addition to the $180,000,000 in federal funds already granted the state, pleas for more aid went forward this week.

The state department of agriculture announced it was seeking $5,000,000 from Washington to aid in the payment of expenses of the cattle tuberculosis eradication campaign.

Governor Rolph wired President Roosevelt seeking aid for California wineries as a means of repairing machinery in disuse for more than 12 years.

* * *

Frank E. Trask, engineer for the federal public works administration, said that the request for aid to finance the $170,000,000 Central Valley water project would be in the hands of federal officials by January 1.

Returning from a trip to Washington, Earl Lee Kelly, state director of public works, said that federal officials were viewing the proposed water project "with a friendly and sympathetic attitude" and watching with interest the outcome of the election December 19.

* * *

Incidentally Kelly said he was informed, while in Washington, that two states, New York and California, so far have had 26 per cent of all recovery funds allocated in the past year.

* * *

New gold prices have had a very beneficial affect on gold mining in California: Walter W. Bradley, state mineralologist, reports that there are more than 22,000 men employed in the industry at the present time.

* * *

Agitation for a special session of the legislature continues to swirl around the governor's office despite the fact Rolph has indicated he does not wish to call a session unless there is some drastic emergency.

Proponents of a special session are led by those favoring changes in the state liquor control law, both from the standpoint of state taxation and control. Hotel men in particular want a law that will permit them to serve something more than wine and beer with meals served in their dining rooms and restaurants.

* * *

According to estimates of officials of the state department of public works, the state will have highway projects totaling more than $20,000,000 under way by January 1, 1934.

MANY ATTEND C OF C LUNCHEON AT HIGH SCHOOL

The Chamber of Commerce luncheon which was held at the High School last Monday noon by the Home Making Class was attended by twenty-five members and friends.

The Hallowe'en motif was carried out in the table decorations. The lunch, which consisted of salad, meat loaf, scalloped potatoes, carrots, squash, bran muffins and cake and coffee, was well prepared and attractively served by the Home Making Class under the supervision of Miss Jensen. All present were high in their praise and expressed the wish that they might have the opportunity to again have luncheon with the class.

H. I. Snider gave a very interesting talk explaining the work that had been accomplished in this department and future plans.

C OF C ENDORSES TOM DOLLEY FOR CHECKING STATION

At the meeting of the Chamber of Commerce Monday noon a letter was read from Tom Dolley asking the endorsement of the Chamber of Commerce for a position at the local checking station. There have been several changes at the checking station during the past month and it is felt that men in this region should be given an opportunity to fill these positions.

It was voted to endorse Mr. Dolley and do all they could to assist him in securing the position.

Surgeon

Dr. Elliott C. Cutler, professor of surgery at the Harvard Medical School, who has announced the development of a new thyroid operation to give permanent relief from angina pectoris, the painful disease of the heart which has been rapidly increasing in recent years. His announcement was made in a paper read before the International Medical Assembly in Cleveland.

CATHERIN ROSSARINI ENTERTAINS AT HALLOWE'EN PARTY

$2,632,150 PROPERTY VALUE RETURNED TO COUNTY TAX ROLLS

Expected To Result In Another Reduction In County Tax Rates

By MELVIN LORD
(United Press Staff Corerspondent)

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 2—(UP)—First steps pointing toward the return to local tax rolls of approximately $2,000,000,000 (B) worth of operative or public utility property have been taken by the state board of equalization with the appointment of A. G. Mott to supervise valuation of public utility property for tax purposes.

Effective November 1, the appointment will mark the beginning of an organization charged with the huge task of certifying to local assessors the value of all operative property as provided in the Riley-Stewart tax plan.

At the present time utility property is taxed on a gross receipts basis. In 1935 it will be returned to local assessment rolls.

This change will affect Nevada county to the extent of $1,760,080 in regular operative property and $872,070 in railroad properties on the basis of a report of State Controller Ray L. Riley.

The return of this property for local tax purposes is expected to result in another reduction in county tax rates. The assumption by the state of school costs under the Riley-Stewart plan permitted an average reduction of 67 cents per $100 valuation in county rates of taxation this year.

Mott will take over the new position after having been on the staff of the state railroad commission since 1921, including service as chief engineer of the commission since 1926.

Headquarters for the new unit will be in Sacramento, the board announced.

'COCKTAIL HOUR' HAS FUN, DRAMA MUSIC AND SONG

It was in the musical comedy, "Rio Rita," that it was discovered Miss Daniels possessed a beautiful voice. In "42nd Street," her last picture prior to "Cocktail Hour," she sang several musical numbers which were received with great enthusiasm.

"Listen Heart of Mine" was written especially for Miss Daniels by Director Victor Schertzinger, who wrote "Marcheta," which sold over 4,000,000 copies, and several other big hits.

If you want to see Miss Daniels at her best, don't fail to see her in "Cocktail Hour" at the Donner Theatre on Sunday night.

Lookout At Martis Creek Now Closed for Winter

Frank Maher, more familiarly known as "Waddles," has closed his "Hotel de Chipmunk" at the lookout station at Martis Peak for the winter months. Waddles has been stationed a Martis Peak for seventeen years and has a host of friends in this region, as well as all over the country, having had numerous write-ups in the various metropolitan papers.

W. C. Winslow made the trip to Martis Peak on Monday to assist Waddles in closing his station. Winslow reports drifts four and five feet deep with the snow frozen near the top of the peak.

Bridge Party At Catholic Parish House Thurs. Nite

Address—Grand Chancellor Wm. U. Handy.

Piano Solo—Bro. W. M. Englehart Jr. of Truckee.

Accordian and Banjo Duet—Miss Edith Pounds and W. Dill.

A banquet will follow the program.

Crown Williamette Tramway Being Torn Down

A wrecking company from San Francisco is at work tearing down the old tramway of the Crown Williamette Paper Co. at Norfolk. This tramway was built about 1918 and is approximately two miles long and was used to carry wood from the top of the mountain to the loading station at Horse Shoe Bend. Use of this tramway was done away with about six years ago.

The wrecking company hired local labor to assist in its operations at the rate of 40 cents an hour for eight hours. The men worked one day and then all struck for a rate of 50 cents an hour claiming that was the prevailing labor scale in this district. The company refused to pay the men at the rate of 50 cents an hour and have picked up several floaters passing thru town to do this work.

Calif. Ski Assn. Meeting Saturday in San Francisco

The meeting of the directors of the California Ski Assn. will meet on Saturday at 2 P. M. in the office of the Harbor Commission in the Ferry Building in San Francisco.

8-POUND TROUT IS TAKEN FROM DITCH

MODESTO, Cal., Nov. 2—(UP)—Steve Brennan of Escalon today laughed at fishermen who spend much time and money chasing down trout in the High Sierra streams.

Brennan caught a 30-inch rainbow trout in an irrigation canal. The trout weighed eight pounds, dressed.

Chamber of Commerce Luncheon will be held at George's Cafe on Monday noon, November 6th.

BUSINESS MEN SIGN PLEDGES TO PROMOTE USE OF WOOD BOXES

Wesley Plunkett, organizer of th Woodworkers' Trade Promotion League, was in town on Tuesday requesting business houses to sign a pledge to support the league's activities in promoting the greater use of wooden boxes and crates.

Mr. Plunkett, who is traveling thru the west in the interests of the league, reports very favorable reception to the campaign.

The campaign, which was launched by the National association of wooden box manufacturers, Pacific division, is to be extended nationally to re-establish wooden containers in commerce.

The cost of producing a wooden box is chiefly the cost of the labor, while substitute containers are produced mainly through the use of machinery.

Increased use of wooden containers will mean the increase in work for the mills in the lumbering districts.

Mr. Plunkett stated that a number of packers have started shipping in wooden containers as a result of the organization's work.

The pledge which the business houses are asked to sign is:

"I hereby join the Woodworkers' Trade Promotion league and pledge my support to its activities in promoting the greater use of wooden boxes and crates, and agree to support workers in the lumber industry by demanding articles made of lumber, and favoring the purchase of all merchandise which is shipped into this city packed in wooden containers."

RECEPTION HELD FOR REV. AND MRS. WILLIS

The Odd Fellows and Rebekahs Lodge held a reception at their lodge rooms on Wednesday evening, October 25th, for the Rev. and Mrs. Willis.

A short program was given with the Rev. Willis singing several vocal solos and Mrs. Lotta Bryant and Catherin Rossarini playing piano duets. The game Bunco was enjoyed during the evening with Mrs. Earl Smith and Rev. Willis capturing first prizes and Mrs. F. A. Powell and A. Anderholden being awarded consolation prizes.

A gift was presented by the members to the guests of honor.

Pink and green, the colors of the order, were used for the color scheme and the lodge rooms were most attractive.

MRS. MARIE COZZALIO AND H. E. VANCE MARRIED IN RENO

Mrs. Marie Cozzalio and H. E. Vance, of the U. S. Forestry Service, were married in Reno last Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Vance are now at the Brockway Summit Station where Mr. Vance is in charge.

FIRST SNOW STORM OF SEASON ARRIVED MONDAY AFTERNOON

The beautiful fall weather that has been prevailing for the past month in the Sierra Region was quickly changed on Sunday. Rain started to fall on Sunday continuing all Sunday night and until Monday afternoon when it changed to snow. The snow piled up quickly and by night a heavy blanket covered the streets and hills. While the highway was open to traffic, many automobile parties did not care to drive over the mountain during the storm and the local hotels reported a good business. The sun came out on Wednesday and the snow melted very quickly.

Mrs. Willis Entertains Sunday School Class

Mrs. P. H. Willis entertained members of the Friendly Sunday School Class with a Hallowe'en party on Monday night. Initiation, jig saw puzzles and contests were enjoyed. Prizes were awarded Misses Dorothy McAdams and Patsy Carson.

Hallowe'en refreshments were served.

STRICT EXAMS REQUIRED TO GET DRIVERS LICENSE

Belief Expressed That Strict Enforcement Will Reduce Motor Car Accidents

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 2—Immediate steps looking toward the tightening up of regulations governing the issuance of drivers licenses in California will be taken by the Departmet of Motor Vehicles.

This announcement of the Department's policy was made today by John A. McGilvray, recently-named chief of the departmental division of drivers licenses, who said its intent was to curb motor accidents. The steps to be taken include:

1. A closer scrutiny of court records of motor violations to eliminate the habitually-careless and unfit driver.

2. Greater centralization of departmental machinery for giving examinations to prospective new drivers and the issuance of renewed licenses to old drivers.

3. A "stiffer" examination of prospective drivers both as to their knowledge of driving regulations, their physical qualifications and driving experience.

4. Greater use of the department's power to revoke licenses for cause.

5. More stringent regulations governing the use of motor vehicles by the young and inexperienced and a possible greater use of the law permitting the issuance of restricted licenses.

McGilvray announced that a possible part of the program would be the calling in of a large number of licenses issued prior to 1929 for renewal. This would put holders of such licenses in the same classification as drivers to whom licenses good for two years were issued after 1929.

The department will require obedience to the law requiring every operator of a motor vehicle to carry his license to drive upon his person and exhibit it at any time an officer of the law requests it.

The assistance of more than 500 members of the California Highway Patrol will be drafted in the program.

McGilvray explained that the department feels the importance of the operator's license has been under-emphasized in the past and that it is felt a more careful administration of its issuance and use will result in accident reduction.

V. C. SHATTUCKS HAVE NARROW ESCAPE IN CALPINE HOTEL FIRE

Mr. and Mrs. V. C. Shattuck of the Donner Theatre had a most unpleasant experience last week as they were in the hotel at Calpine which burned to the ground, one man being unable to escape and being burned to death.

Mr. and Mrs. Shattuck were awakened by a crackling noise and discovered flames coming thru the ceiling of their room. They had to escape thru a window as by the time they were awakened the stairways and halls were a roaring furnace. Their car, which was parked in front of the hotel with all their moving picture equipment, was moved to safety none too soon.

It is not known how the fire started, but as the strucure was all wood and the fire had a good start before it was discovered, it was not long before it was in ruins.

BRUSH FIRE AT RUSSELL VALLEY

A brush fire was discovered by Dan Smith at Russell Valley near Dry Creek on Saturday. The fire was reported to the local Forestry Station and a crew from the CCC camp accompanied by H. I. Snider and W. C. Winslow went to the scene and soon extinguished the flames. It was thought the fire was caused by a smoker who had been digging grub worms in the vicinity.

GIVING WHISKEY TO CONDEMNED SLAYERS?

By United Press

Giving whiskey to condemned slayers in the hours preceding execution isn't anything to become excited over, according to many California editors. The practice has been in existence a long time.

But, the editors say, the publicity attendant upon Governor Rolph's grant of liquor to Dallas Egan was totally unwarranted.

Charging the flask of bourbon shares honors with ministers of the gospel as consolers in the final hours, the San Francisco News said:

"Mr. Rolph should decide which it shall be, religion or a bottle of whiskey. Is hanging a solemn rite justified by the laws of God, calculated to give the murdered a final awful realization of his crime and a moment of genuine awareness and repentance? Or is it just a savage and bestial revenge carried out by a tyrant state on a poor wretch who is first drugged with whisky to salve the conscience of the executioners?"

"There ought to be a limit to showmanship," declared the Hanford Daily Sentinel, adding: "The idea of permitting a doomed prisoner to sate himself with liquor before and as he went to the gibbet to hang for taking the life of his fellowman in cold blood! The horror of the thing makes one shudder. Either the governor had failed to appreciate the enormity of the thing or he had little respect for the ordinary conventions that hedge about the sending of a human soul to eternity."

On the contrary, the Santa Rosa Republican believes: "Certainly the ends of justice are gained none the better by depriving men about to be hanged of any such personal request—provided it be within the bounds of reason. As it turned out, Egan went to his death sober. 'I do not want to be ''swanked,'' he said. Whereby he unintentionally robbed the 'holier-than-thou' element of another official act to find fault with."

According to the Santa Ana Register, "there are those who have urged a man should not be made drunken in the last solemn moments in his life but that he should face his end in his sober mind. We do not know as we would seriously differ with these people, though we are inclined to feel that an opiate of any kind at such a time would be wonderfully humane. But it does seem that the whole matter could have been treated in a finer and more wholesome manner by the governor of California."

"Whether Egan should have had whisky in his last hours," said the Stockton Record, "seems like a case of much ado about nothing it if is true, as generally believed, that doomed men are given dope in order to buoy them toward the gallows. If narcotics, why not alcohol? After all, the principal argument made in favor of capital punnment is that it serves as a deterrent to the criminally inclined—not to the man who is paying with his neck. The important thing is that Egan paid and served as an example. If the death penalty is a crime deterrent the mere fact that his last hours were softened by gubernatorial whisky will not encourage other would-be murderers to follow in his footsteps."

"Many would prefer that Egan had devoted his last hours to Bible reading and prayer," remarked the El Centro Imperial Valley Press. "The fact that he chose something else seems to be pretty much his own business. After all, what good does it do to praise or censure the governor's act? Egan is gone and the matter is ended. The next man about to be hanged may ask for a couple gallons of ice cream. Should he be denied it because some prefer cake to ice cream?"

POOR TRAVELERS

Americans are the world's most numerous and frequent travelers. Particularly since the World War have they flocked to all parts of the globe in great numbers. In spite of this apparent enthusiasm, according to Dr. W. Beran Wolfe, the average American "simply does not know how to travel," because he never gets away from his own Main Street. He persists in regarding everything he sees abroad as "queer" or "funny" if it differs from the home product.

Sacred places, ancient buildings, local customs, historical lore, native art are matters of passing curiosity. Their inner meaning and cultural significance are lost on the typical American traveler. As for making them a part of himself and thereby enriching his own personality and widening his own interests, the touring American either doesn't want to or doesn't know how to do so.

There is some truth in this criticsm, yet it is not universally applicable. There are many American travelers who fit so well into the foreign scenes they visit that they become inconspicuous. The obvious Main Streeter sticks out like a sore thumb and makes his type appear more numerous than it really is. He would be just as bad in his own country, preferring his home town to any other community, great or small. But he is not the whole traveling public, fortunately.

"WHO'S AFRAID OF THE BIG BAD BEAR"

The Cave of the Stone Flowers

Far to the south, beyond the blue haze of the distant horizon, were the Uitzes, the forest-covered hill ranges of Yucatan, and somewhere, buried among these little-known hills, was the big cave of Loltun, the Cave of the Stone Flowers.

We passed through two chambers, seeing much that was interesting, but nothing remarkable, and entered a long tunnel whose walls, the color of burnt amber, so ate up the light that the candles we carried seemed to burn holes in the darkness instead of illuminating it. The tunnel led finally into a third chamber, high-doomed and hung with stalactites, some massive and dark-colored, others slender and snow-white, their tips sparkling like diamond points in the candlelight.

At a place in the roof of this chamber where it is the thinnest is a big opening nearly circular. Some hundreds of years ago, a bird dropped a fruit of the osh tree through this opening and it fell on the earth floor of the cave chamber. It took root and grew, a long slender sapling, until it reached the sunlight of the world above; then it spread abroad a shining crown of dark green leaves. Strengthened by the rays of the sun above and nourished by the rich damp soil below, the slender sapling became the massive tree with the wonderful crown of foliage that we found when we came.

At the chamber entrance a smooth section of the vertical wall-surface was covered by a broad band of wall-carved hieroglyphs; ancient incriptions, still visible under the dark green mould that had grown over them. Projecting above the uneven floor were several large lime stone boulders, some of which bore symbols of unknown meanings and hieroglyphs deeply carved on their surface. In the passage that connects the third and fourth chambers of the cave is a beautiful work of nature. A cylindrical pedestal of white stalagmite with fluted walls and base stands close by a wall of the passage. The rounded crown of this column resembles the tightly, closed petals of a snow-white blossom. In its center is a cavity like a chalice half-shielded by a transparent veil of crystalline limestone. Not a drop of water enters from the roof above, yet the chalice is always full of clear, cold water and the walls of the pedestal are never free from the overflowing moisture.
—Edward Herbert Thompson, in "People of the Serpent, Life and Adventure Among the Mayas." (Boston: Houghton Mifflin.)

PROFIT

No profit has a flower
Except to grow;
Yet it pays for itself,
Its hour in blow,
By being a flower, a thing
To fasten us to spring.

Each loveliness we earn
By loveliness;
Worth comes to worth, and so
No more, no less,
Our profit is to be each day
Ourselves; by this we pay.
—Lizette Woodworth Reese, in "White April."

Politically Speaking

By GEORGE E. HELMER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

By GEORGE E. HELMER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 2—(UP)—The biggest free-for-all political fight in the history of the state will be staged next year if present signs mean anything.

There are, no doubt, quite a number of people who have not contemplated entering the gubernatorial race. In fact, some have emphatically stated they would NOT. But at this early date, 30 or more have been mentioned as possible candidates, and the field is growing. And that doesn't include persons who might be toying with the idea and saying nothing.

Sheridan Downey, Sacramento, Rolph administration critic and counsel for the senate investigation last winter, was the last to announce himself. He wants to arrange debates with Governor Rolph, Treasurer Charles G. Johnson, ex-Governors Young and Richardson and other possible candidates, just so he can prove, to his satisfaction at least, that he's the best bet.

Downey is one of several little-known democrats who seek the nomination. Because of the popularity accorded President Roosevelt, the democrats look toward 1934 as the year when the republican rule of California will be ended. But they continue to be disrupted by internal bickering, and there appears little hope of the party getting together, patching up the fight between the McAdoo-Wardell factions, and becoming unified in supporting one strong candidate.

Rolph has not officially announced himself as a candidate for re-election, but of course everybody in confident he will. Since his illness, though, he has been working long hours daily. He is gradually regaining his strength, but he could not stand up under a personal campaign. And all are agreed that his only hope of re-election would lie in an active, personal tour of the state.

Most people who know Rolph love him for his personality and big heart. His close friends believe that if he could reach enough people, he would stand a good chance of upsetting tradition and being re-elected, despite all attempts to blame him for state indebtedness, sales tax, cotton strikes, and the depression generally. A monh's rest at Palm Springs might put him in shape for a campaign, but he refuses to leave his work.

From time to time there is agitation for consolidation of the offices of state controller and finance director. And possibly treasurer, also. Heads of all three departments have been way for the past two weeks, but their offices apparently have gotten along all right.

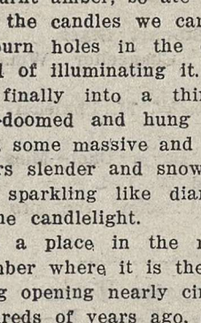

Activity in the capitol has centered in three spots—the governor's office, state board of equalization and board of public works.

YOUR GOOD HEALTH

Birth Marks, Their Cause and Methods of Removal

By CLAUD NORTH CHRISMAN, M.D.

A BIRTH MARK is a congenital overgrowth of the blood vessels of the bed of the skin, or layer next below the outer skin. These blood vessels are a new growth and probably have no connection with the normal blood vessels of the skin. It is congenital or present at birth, but does not usually appear for several weeks or months after birth. They may be of any size from the size of a pea to the whole side of the face and head or an entire limb. They are not hereditary.

* * *

I HAVE heard many parents say that they were caused by the mental condition of the mother before birth, or by accidents or fright. I have had many mothers inform me before the child's birth that she has marked her child. I have made a special effort to have her tell me how it was marked, but have never seen one marked as described, and in most cases they have not been marked at all.

* * *

IT'S possible that an injury to the child, as a blow or pressure, may cause the abnormal spot, but I doubt if any emotional state will cause a birth mark. These marks may be of any color from bright red to purple, depending on whether the new growth of blood vessels arise from an artery or vein. The flat ones, that do not rise above the surrounding skin, are usually red or pink, or a bluish red, depending on the size and number of new blood vessels.

* * *

THEY usually increase quite rapidly for a few weeks after first appearance, but do not as a rule get larger; after that they only increase to the same extent as the rest of the body grows. The most frequent site is the face and neck and the marks are more common in girls than in boys. The thick or swollen marks, those that extend above the surrounding skin, have simply larger and more dilated blood vessels.

* * *

OCCASIONALLY a large one may ulcerate and break down and disappear, but when they do so there is great danger of severe hemorrhage. Pressure over the growth will cause a temporary fading of the color, and any emotion or exertion, as coughing, crying and laughing, increases the color. The former methods of treatment, as surgical removal or injection or tattooing, were not very successful, and often these methods left unsightly scars, but when a small area is involved, surgical removal or use of the electric needle may be very satisfactory.

* * *

FOR the flat lesions, ultra-violet rays, X-ray and radium are preferable. Of course, no one but an expert should attempt the treatment, but with careful and thorough treatment with any of these methods we can at least expect a decided fading and often complete removal with little if any scarring.

A NICE FOREHEAD IS NECESSARY FOR A REALLY BEAUTIFUL FACE

By JACQUELINE HUNT

I HOPE you enjoyed yesterday's beauty lesson on how to make your eyes lovely. Our subject today is foreheads — not because they come in alphabetical order but because they are so important in giving you an open, youthful countenance. And having a fair forehead means more than beauty care; it means developing the right personality traits.

MISS HUNT

Do you find that it helps to have things before you in black and white? Little "do's" and "don'ts" that remind you of things you might otherwise overlook? If so I think you will find these lessons on beauty very useful. Now for foreheads.

First of all you mustn't scowl when you are annoyed or wrinkle your forehead when you are surprized. Learn to be patient with the little things that go wrong. Frowns draw the eyebrows together and make little up-and-down nose wrinkles that are so hard to get rid of once they come.

When you see the faintest lines putting in their appearance, try to discourage them by the use of plasters that are made specially for the purpose. Or dilute the white of an egg and dip a strip of gauze in it. Paste the gauze over the wrinkles and let it dry. Remove with warm water and smooth in a little softening cream if your skin is inclined to be dry.

Don't overlook your forehead when you cleanse your face. Pin a strip of gauze or a light towel around your head to keep the cleansing cream, soap and water and softening cream or tonic away from your hair.

Each evening when you cleanse your skin give your forehead a brief massage from the center out to the hairline, beginning just over the bridge of the nose, and raising your fingers with each stroke until you reach the top hairline.

Make up your forehead just as carefully as you do your face, starting with a tonic or your usual foundation preparation and powdering carefully. Remember that a shiny forehead is just as bad as a shiny nose and it is several times as big.

After your make-up is applied, moisten a pad of cotton in skin tonic, and go over your hairline carefully to remove any cream or powder. Powder or oil on your hairline gives you an untidy, careless appearance.

Wear your forehead bare if you can—if it is smooth and good looking and your hairline is good! If your forehead isn't smooth, try to make it that way. One of my readers wrote me recently saying that she had to wear her hair combed low over her forehead because it was covered with pimples and blemishes. Her hair, she told me was very oily, and I suspect that it was one of the chief causes of her unlovely forehead. Proper cleansing, massage and a good tonic or astringent to rouse the circulation will work wonders where foreheads are concerned.

Red Cross first aid on the highway.

The Red Cross has given relief to those in need because of unemployment, disaster and related causes, in every State, in practically every county, of the United States the past year.

With 85,000,000 bushels of government wheat it produced and distributed 10,500,000 barrels of flour to nearly 6,000,000 families, more than 25,000,000 men, women and children.

From 844,000 bales of government cotton it produced 104,000,000 garments to help clothe more than 5,000,000 families.

2,627 Chapters expended $2,420,000 in relief in various forms to the unemployed.

92 disasters in the U. S. and its possessions required Red Cross relief. The National organization appropriated $382,200 for relief work in these disasters in addition to contributions raised locally. In 12 weeks disaster service was given in 147 counties in 24 States to more than 30,000 families.

275,000 war veterans and their families were aided by Red Cross Chapters.

65,000 First Aid certificates were issued. 75,000 individuals enrolled in Life Saving Classes. 35,000 students of Home Hygiene were awarded certificates. 6,700,000 school children enrolled in the Junior Red Cross, served in their communities.

Volunteer workers made 38,000,000 garments.

TAHOE REGION NEWS

By "SWANEE"

Ushered in by rain, wind, hail and thunder, the first snow storm of the winter arrived at Tahoe City and vicinity about 1:30 on Monday. A wind storm on Saturday brought rain which continued almost steadily until Monday, when it developed into hail and then snow.

The populace, as a whole, is grateful for the rain, altho the snow is not so welcome. The first snow fell in the mountain regions surrounding the lake on Sunday, but waited until Monday to visit town. Tahoe winters have their mete of beauty but it is the autumns which are especially lovely. This year the season was much longer than usual and the trees and shrubs particularly gorgeous in their riotously beautiful colors. All shades of flaming red, gold, brown, orange and green have enhanced the scintillating beauty of our forest-lined drives and cast their gay reflections back into the placid, crystal clear waters of Tahoe. But they will shortly all be gone, dancing with the mournful winter winds, across barren fields which will lie now under their white ermine cloak awating the coming of another spring.

The depth of snow at this writing in Tahoe City is about 12 inches while at Sunnyside it is 24 inches and folks are shoveling out to the highway, which is not as yet opened. Precipitation up to Tuesday morning is 4.91 inches.

Altho many residents bemoan the passing of summer and advent of winter, there is one bright aspect to the situation. No longer will it be necessary to lie awake listening to the horse and cow bells jangling all night long, as they frolic along the highways and, uninvited, park themselves in folk's yards where the lawns and flower shrubs are luscious and plentiful. All over the town have these pesky critters raised havoc and lowered the morale of the public along with the aforementioned lawns. As Tahoe is not incorporated, the law says our territory is "open range" and nothing can be done about it, except what was done—a lot of cussing fussing, fuming and threatening. So at least, with the coming of the snow, the roaming, ringing bands of cows and horses will no longer prove nightmares to Tahoe's sleepless citizens.

Ostentatious in every respect was the elaborate dinner party given on Saturday evening at 6:30 P. M. in the Tahoe Women's clubhouse by Mrs. W. A. Simmonds and Mrs Weller Atherton, who were joint hostesses at the delightful affair. Nearly sixty persons attended and greatly enjoyed the delectable chicken dinner ,topped off with pumpkin pie and whipped cream, salted peanuts and hot coffee. The individual tables, each seating four, were gaily garbed in orange tablecloths, decorated with black witches, cats and jack-o-lanterns while the hall itself was dressed in the colorful symbols of Hallowe'en, the walls lined with rows of black goblins and pumpkins on bright orange paper; a great gray skeleton that dangled at one end of the room, leered menacingly at a huge lighted paper pumpkin of orange, who grinned back in seeming unconcern; sheaves of red and yellow autumn leaves graced advantageous corners, while marvelous bouquets of lovely bright flowers were in evidence everywhere. Truly, the club house has never known more gorgeous rainment than on this occasion.

Concluding dinner, the tables were cleared and auction bridge enjoyed until a late hour. The young ladies with cunning caps and aprons of orange and black who waited on tables and assisted in receiving the guests were Misses Kathleen Anderson, Lillian and Florence Vernon, Sue Hinkle and Barbara Howrigan. Guests who attended and thoroughly enjoyed the delightful evening included Messrs. and Mesdames H. D. Worden, C. Trickey J. E. Pomin, N. R. Mayfield, A. M Anderson, C. O. Valentine, E. H. Pomin, Charles Swanson and son, Ted Marshall, Si Pierson, J. J. Planett Phillip Gallenger, A. M. Henry, William Wathen, Carl Bechdolt and son Billie, Robert Watson, F. Hollenbeck, C. W. Vernon, Joe Howrigan Willis Hevel, Henry Soll, John Stevens, Mesdames Fred Cowell, George Bliss, Nina Rogers, Otto Darlin and Messrs. Gene Rogers, Weller Atherton and W. A. Simmonds.

High scores for the evening were held as follows: Mrs. A. M. Anderson, first ladies prize; Mrs. Otto Darlin, second; Mrs. J. J. Planett consolation. Men's first prize was awarded C. W. Vernon, second Carl Bechdolt and consolation Mr. F. Hollenbeck.

On Thursday nite at 7 P. M. Mrs Otis Hursey of Sunnyside was hostess at a dinner party celebrating the birthday of her husband. A large birthday cake boasting thirty-three candles served as centerpiece for the table. A delicious chicken dinner was followed by a lively evening of "Michigan." Guests who enjoyed the Hursey's hospitality were Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Nichter of Lake Forest, Lee Orr of Homewood Mr. and Mrs. William Topp of Tahoe Cedars and Mr. and Mrs. Chas Swanson and son Jimmie.

Professor Henry Hinkle of Stanford University visited his family at Tahoe over the week end.

The Catholic women of Tahoe held a card party on Wednesday night at 8:00 P. M. at the Tahoe Women's clubhouse which drew a fair attendance, some coming from Truckee. Apple and pumpkin pies with hot coffee were served after the game by the hostesses of the evening, Mrs. A. M. Henry, Mrs. H Meyers, Mrs. Joe Howrigan, Mrs H. D. Worden, Mrs. Carl Bechdolt and Mrs. Charles Swanson. First ladies prize was won by Mrs. Joe Howrigan, second by Mrs. H. Meyers and consolation by Mrs. N. R Mayfield. Men's first prize went to Joe Henry of Tahoe, second to Geo Andrus of Truckee, third to Gene Rogers and consolation to Fred Kohler.

On Thursday at 2:00 P. M. members of the Tahoe Women's club met at the clubhouse and enjoyed a social afternoon of bridge, refreshments being served after the game

Fishing season closed and duck season opened November 1st. To date very few ducks have been sighted in the vicinity of the lake. Local hunters are hoping they will be more plentiful than were the buck this year.

On Sunday evening Constable Carl Bechdolt of Tahoe City arrested the son of a former Tahoe resident (name deleted on general principles of this column) as a suspect in a series of local housebreakings in which personal effects were taken. Articles stolen from Tahoe residences which have been identified, were found in the possession of the youth, who also named and incriminated another John Doe in Reno. This party was arrested by the Reno Sheriff on Monday, and held in jail until the arrival of Constable Bechdolt and Deputy Sheriff Charles Swanson of Tahoe who returned the prisoner to Tahoe Inn where both are kept under guard until preliminary hearing before Judge George Bliss.

This clarifies the apprehension being felt at the long list of petty thievery and pilfering which have been noted for some time here. A third man, said to be in San Francisco, also accused of complicity has been named by the John Doe from Reno and his arrest will be sought immediately.

One night recently Mrs. C. W Vernon was startled when one of her daughters rushed into her room shortly after midnight to tell her that a man had climbed a ladder placed against the house and peered into the window of her upstairs bedroom. Mrs. Vernon thought it all to be a nightmare, but secured her revolver and hurried to the girl's room. Looking out she saw the shadow of someone disappearing in to the darkness. She and her husband dressed hurriedly and scoured the neighborhood but could find no trace of the intruder. The next "peeping Tom" who visits the Vernon home is likely to receive a warm reception.

Telephone linemen were kept busy after the snow storm repairing phone lines, as all but two or three were "out of order" on Tuseday morning. The sun came out intermittently and the landscape was a beautiful sight in its fresh white coat of snow. Occasional flurries of snow lead one to believe that the storm is not yet over. Many old timers believe we are in for a hard winter.

On Wednesday afternoon Mrs Howard Johnson of Tahoe Cedars was hostess at an afternoon of bridge in her attractive new home. Guests who enjoyed her hospitality were Mesdames E. H. Pomin, Nina Rogers, C. O. Valentine, Dave Chambers, C. Trickey, Frank Pomin and George Bliss. The Johnsons left last week for Oakland where they plan to spend the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Willis Hevel on Saturday last celebrated their wedding anniversary at their home in Tahoe City.

Some men are married as long as five years before learning that to drop an occasional dish is cheaper than wiping them the rest of one's career.

DEPRESSION BLAMED FOR BIG INCREASE IN HOSPITAL INMATES

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 2—(UP)—California's tremendous increase in the number of inmates in its state hospitals may be traced directly to the depression, in the opinion of Dr. J. M. Toner, state director of institutions.

Unemployment, fear, anxiety and a breakdown in preventive activities were listed by the director as being responsible for a 62 per cent increase in institution population in the last decade.

Ten years ago the state was treating 11,300 persons in her mental hospitals. This number has reached 18,000 at the present time.

"Unless this increase is checked," said Dr. Toner, "public welfare soon will become the most costly function of government."

SIXTEEN LEGISLATIVE BILLS GO INTO EFFECT AS LAWS OCTOBER 25

By GEOROE E. HEDMER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 2—(UP)—Sixteeen legislative bills became laws on Ooctober 25th, affecting schools, judges' salaries, tax delinquent property redemption, state employes' junkets and fish and game rules.

The bills were passed during the July session of the state legislature. They were not considered emergency measures, so were permitted to become effective in the routine course of time. A referendum held up one bill—the Central Valley Water project—and forced a special election December 19.

State support of the California Nautical school will be ended June 30, 1934, under terms of one bill. The merchant marine training institute will have to seek elsewhere for its funds, although pledged federal aid may finance the school for a few months beyond June 30.

There will be no more 4½-year-old kindergarten pupils. A new law makes 5 years the minimum age for kindergarten entry.

Non-resident students in California's seven teachers colleges must pay $75 for tuition the first semester and $37.50 each semester thereafter.

School superintendents must pay for their own conventions, rather than relying upon state support.

Salaries of superior judges were slashed as a result of another bill. Those in Colusa county were trimmed from $6,000 to $5,000 annually and Orange and San Bernardino counties slashed salaries from $7,000 to $6,000. Los Angeles and Long Beach municipal judges were cut from $7,500 to $6,500.

Two important bills affected redemption of delinquent land deeded to the state. Local government agencies were authorized to purchase property deeded to the state for

PONDEROSA WAY TO BE CONSTRUCTED BY CCC CAMP WORKERS

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 2—(UP)—A huge firebreak representing a first line of defense along the Sierra foothills is to be possible chiefly as the result of CCC camps established in California.

The project, long a dream of Californa foresters, already is well under way and work to be undertaken by federal and state camps this winter will be aimed at the completion of this proposal, according to State Forester M. B. Pratt.

"Ponderosa Way is the term given to the fire break that will extend between the lower edge of the ponderosa pine type and the brush," Pratt said. It is proposed to extend it for about 800 miles from a point near Redding to the Sequoia National forest in Tulare county.

"In anticipation of this work, a large majority of the camps in northern California will be located on or adjacent to Ponderosa way, on which they can work during the entire winter.

"It is possible that the entire project will not be completed this winter, but enough will be done to bring to a realization a dream that has long been in the minds of foresters in California, but which could not be undertaken with the means at our disposal.

"The CCC camps have provided this means, and we are all hoping that before they leave California we may have a Ponderosa Way from 100 to 150 feet wide with a motor-way in the center extending along the Sierra for 800 miles."

Pratt said that approximately 30 miles of the project already had been completed. In addition to providing a fire break, the inclusion of a motor-way will permit the rapid movement of fire fighting equipment, it was pointed out.

There are 3072 counties in the United States. San Bernardino County in California is the largest.

TWO FAMOUS SWEETHEARTS

AN EX-SWEETHEART congratulates her successor and does it with a smile! Miss Emeryl McHale (on the right), who last summer was chosen as "Sweetheart of the 21st Annual California Rodeo," is seen congratulating Miss Ardoth Schneider, this year's winner. Miss Schneider, representative of Long Beach, won the title of "Finest Outdoor Girl in California" and was crowned "Sweetheart of the Rodeo" in competition with thirty-one other contestants at the contest held in Salinas last July She is now enjoying one of the prizes awarded her—a 5,000-mile cruise on the new Grace liner, Santa Lucia—with visits en route in Mexico, Guatemala, El Salvador, Panama, Colombia, Havana and New York—and a return rail trip which includes a visit to the World's Fair and points of interest in the West.

The Rodeo contest is by no means a bathing beauty affair. Pulchritude and personality count, of course, but the "Finest Outdoor Girl in California" must have other qualifications as well. She must rate 100% as follows: 25% in horsemanship; 25% in cultural and educational accomplishments; 25% in personality; 15% in appearance, from a health and beauty standpoint; and 10% in costume.

Miss Schneider, though only twenty-two years old, has already won distinction as a horsewoman. She began riding when only three years old, on her father's ranch, winning fame for the stunts she performed on her trick pony. She made the headlines five years ago by riding to victory in the Coronado Town Plate at Agua Caliente, the first recognized race for women jockeys in the country. She holds the roman riding championship of the world and has toured the Orient with her ponies.

County Residents Warned Not To Sign Recall Petitions

By GEORGE E. HELMER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 2—(UP)—State officials today warned residents of Nevada County to investigate before signing petitions and contributing money to aid recall movements.

The latest widespread racket to make itself evident in all sections of the state is that involving the distribution of recall petitions. Many have been circulated, thousands of dollars have been collected from well-meaning donors, but none of the petitions have been filed here.

All of which led authorities to say another fraudulent scheme had been foisted onto the public.

Recall petition rackets usually follow this method: They draw up petitions for the recall of the governor, or the sales tax or some other measure not entirely popular, or for changes in state departments. The petition forms are given to circulators, usually poor people, who are paid a high percentage of money collected to aid the "campaign." Circulators, when asking for signatures, also request a cash donation, probably a dime.

Many people sign and contribute, not bothering to determine whether the questions were originated by responsible persons or organizations Circulators pocket 50 or 60 per cent of the contributions and backers of the movement take the remainder. No attempt is made, in most cases, to file the petitions. In event of a showdown, there would be the argument "We didn't get sufficient signatures." And contributors would not wish to fight over a lost dime.

Governor Rolph directed C. S. Morrill, chief of the division of criminal identification, to make an exhaustive investigation and "run the racket to earth."

Many officials, including Richard E. Collins, veteran member of the state board of equalization, predict the racket, unless curbed, may result in elimination of initiative, recall and referendum privileges by paving the way for attacks against those methods of letting the people express themselves beween elections.

Bona fide petitions, it was pointed out, usually are sponsored by reputable persons. Investigation would disclose the origin, and the racket would be halted if everybody refused to contribute money to petition circulators, authorities believe.

The racket is most prevalent in metropolitan centers, but evidences of it have been reported from nearly every section of the state.

22 Mile Chase Is Made For Speeding Motorist

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 2—(UP)—One of the longest chases ever made by state highway patrolmen resulted in the arrest of two youths who cruised the highway between Vallejo and Sacramento at a speed of 70 miles an hour.

Two patrolmen in an automobile followed the youths five miles but were unable to catch up with them because of traffic conditions. A motorcycle officer took up the chase for 15 miles, then was joined by another. The speeders were overtaken 22 miles from the point where they were first sighted.

Moth Causes Earache By Flapping Its Wings

LODI, Cal., Nov. 2—(UP)—Any move for the complete extermination of moths will probably be heartily endorsed by George Flint.

Preparing his evening meal over an open fire along the highway near here recently, Flint experienced a severe stinging in his right ear. As the agony increased Flint was rushed to a local hospital.

Physicians removed the moth which had entered the ear and started flapping its wings in an effort to get free.

non-payment. This would give irrigation and other districts, with claims against the land, opportunity to obtain title.

The other bill reduced sales costs and eliminated the necessity of county tax collectors obtaining permission from the state controller before auctioning land for taxes.

The board of control was given authority, in another bill, to fix maximum traveling expenses of state officers and employes. This was devised to end complaints of extravagance.

Power of the state insurance commissioner to appoint special attorneys in liquidation proceedings was transferred to the state attorney general.

SPEED TESTS BARRED ON STATE HIGHWAYS

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 2—(UP)—Speed tests on California's highways will not be tolerated, E. Raymond Cato, chief of the highway patrol, said in letters today to Austin E. Elmore, automotive testing engineer, and officials of the Automobile Club of Southern California.

The warning resulted from a speed trial said to have been made by Elmore between Los Angeles and San Francisco. He covered the distance at an average speed of 66 miles an hour and at times exceeded 75 miles, it was reported. The test was made for the purpose of advertising a brand of gasoline and certain make of car.

"Statistics have proved to us," Cato said, "that excessive speed is the cause of a majority of motor vehicle deaths and accidents. It is my duty to see that no such wanton violations of highway laws are committed. Speed and endurance tests should be made on race tracks or places not being used by the public. We ask your cooperation to see that there are no more test runs on public highways."

SOUTH AFRICAN MAN AMAZED AT VARIOUS PRODUCTS OF STATE

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 2—(UP)—Development of agriculture in California was termed "amazing" here recently when the department of agriculture was visited by Senator Francois Stephanus Malan, representing the governor general of the Union of South Africa.

Senator Malan, on a tour of the state, was particularly impressed with the wide variety of products grown in the state. After leaving here he planned a tour of the agricultural college at Davis and the Napa wine district.

"There is no need to worry over competition between the products of California and South Africa," he said. "Our seasons are exactly opposite.

DEATH VALLEY HEALTH RESORT

LONG BEACH, Cal., Nov. 2—(UP)—Death Valley Scotty, originator of preposterous schemes, which seem more incredible when he executes them, has a new idea, it was reported today.

Scotty and a wealthy Chicago associate have acquired a tract of land on a mountain top near Ballarat, Death Valley, and will erect a palatial sanitarium on the spot, according to the report.

Word of the new venture was brought back by W. M. Gaede, Long Beach real estate man, after a visit to Death Valley.

The property in question includes a mineral well, Gaede said, and present plans are to build a sanitarium offering luxurious surroundings, dry mountain air and mineral water.

Scotty's famous "palace" recently was damaged by a cloudburst. Gaede said.

"A torrent of water swept through the palace," he said, "and wrecked it pretty thoroughly. We were told no effort will be made to restore the place."

Ballarat is a ghost town boasting only two inhabitants, Gaede said.

State Engineer Hyatt Booster For Central Valley Water Project

By GEORGE E. HELMER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 2—(UP)—One of the most militant supporters of the Central Valley Water project is Edward Hyatt, state engineer and chief of the division of water resources.

Hyatt has spent years in the study of irrigation and power developments, navigability of streams and reclamation of lands. He looks upon the $170,000,000 water plan as a method of bringing immense aid to California, and he personally can see no strength in arguments against the proposed project.

Opponents of the plan, insisting it would saddle the state and taxpayers with a huge debt, also claim it would place large sections of new and under cultivation, thus increasing farm output already overproduced.

Attorney General U. S. Webb answered the first arugment by saying the project would be self-liquidating and the state and taxpayers would not be called upon to bear the expense. Hyatt answered the second, spiritedly.

"The plan does not contemplate irrigation of additional acreage," he said. "It would provide better irrigation facilities for present cultivated acreage, and would save much of that land from returning to a desert state.

Opponents will shout, 'let it return to desert.' We might just as well say, 'kill the Mississippi flood control plan and let the land go to wades.'

"The Central Valley Water plan is devised as a power, flood control and land saving project. It would increase the navigability of rivers on which dams would be constructed, and would conserve supplies of water, causing the flow to be more evenly distributed through out the year.

"Possibly some additional acreage would be placed under irrigation, but the increase would be very small."

Proponents of the plan want the people to adopt it at the special election December 19 in order that California may take advantage of federal aid. If the project is not approved until next year, the possibility of obtaining a $43,000,000 loan from the government will fade. This loan has not been promised, but Hyatt believes the project will be approved by federal engineers and that the loan will be available.

Naturally the government is reluctant to support a project before it knows whether the state itself favors the plan.

"For if by one man's offence death reigned by one; much more they which receive abundance of grace and of the gift of righteousness shall reign in life by one, Jesus Christ." These words from the Epistle to the Romans comprise the Golden Text to be used next Sunday in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass,

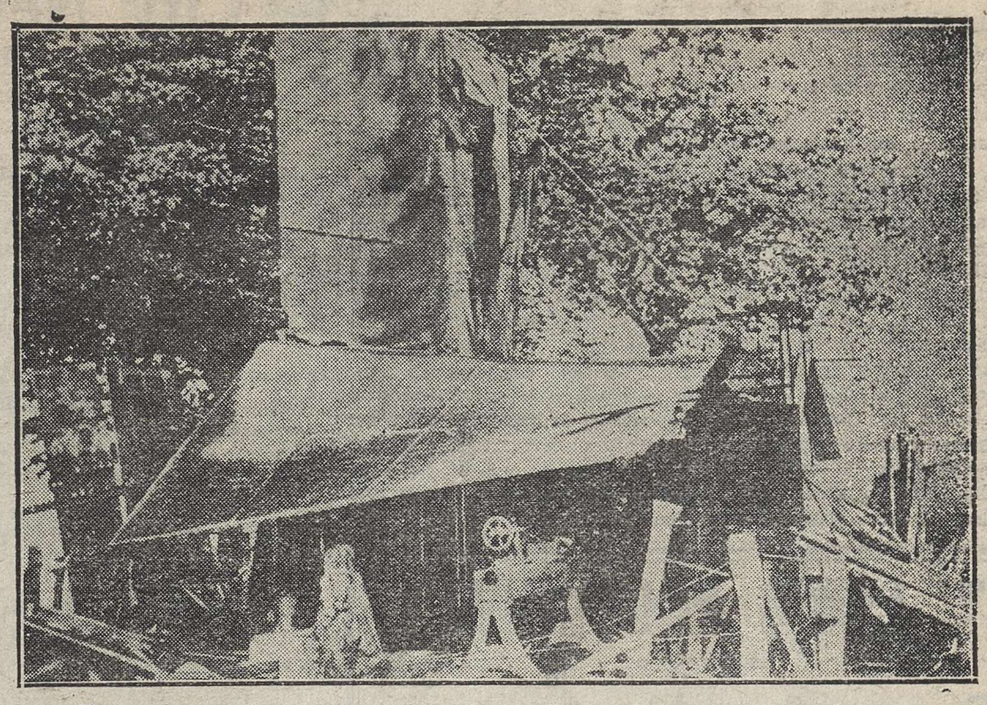

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon will be "Adam and Fallen Man." Included among the Scriptural selections will be: "And the great dragon was cast out, that old serpent, called the Devil, and Satan, which deceiveth the whole world: he was cast out into the earth, and his angels were cast out with him." (Rev. 12:9).

The following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, also will be included: "Truth and Love come nearer in the hour of woe, when strong faith or spiritual strength wrestles and prevails through the understanding of God. The Gabriel of His presence has no contests. To infinite, ever present Love, all is Love, and there is no error, no sin, sickness nor death. Against Love, the dragon warreth not long, for he is killed by the divine Principle." (p. 567).

VIERLING KERSEY GOES TO WASH. TO SEEK AID FOR STATE'S SCHOOLS

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 2—(UP)—Vierling Kersey, state superintendent of public instruction, left last Friday for Washington where he will seek federal relief and support for California schools.

At Washington Kersey will attend a meeting of the national committee of state school superintendents on federal relations in public education, which will prepare a program including legislative suggestions for furtherance of federal financing of schools.

"Review of educational conditions emphasizes there must be federal relief for education as a result of the economic breakdown with resultant demoralization of school support in many states," Kersey said before his departure.

"Federal credit is better than that of the states, and for this and other reasons we must look to national government for school relief."

Man Sues For Dog Bite

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 2—(UP)—The question of whether a dog is entitled to one bite may find its answer in a suit on file in superior court here.

William B. Phillips, building contractor, asks $15,555 damages from G. H. Slawson. He charges Slawson's dog attacked him several weeks ago.

In his complaint, Phillips asserts the dog not only ripped his clothing but also tore a chunk of flesh from the plaintiff's leg.

CCC CAMP GETS A PERFECT SCORE

REDDING, Cal., Nov. 2—(UP)—A perfect score was chalked up to the credit of at least one fire-fighting crew of the Civilian Conservation Corps.

Members of the fire supervision squad at Happy Camp, Siskiyou county, devoted much of the summer to keeping in shape for any emergency. Axes were sharpened, trucks and other equipment kept polished, and many practice runs were made.

But, the season passed without a single blaze.

GLUTTONY OF MOUSE HASTENS HIS DEATH

FRESNO, Cal., Nov. 2—(UP)—The ravenous mouse which threatened destruction to records of the Fresno county sheriff's office died a victim of his own gluttony and of the cunning of Deputies Wallace Moore and William J. Mortland Jr.

The mouse ate most of a telephone book, then started in on department files.

"That mouse will eat us out of our jobs," the officers lamented. "We have to do something."

Patiently they baited an empty file cabinet drawer with blank paper; each night was a festive Roman holiday for the rodent.

Then one night, a trap snapped within the dark cabinet drawer. The mouse, deceived by a paper-baited trap, was found dead the next morning.

Mortland ond Moore now plan a scientific campaign against rats which infest the photo room.

Washington Current Comment

The withdrawal of Germany from the arms conference and from the League of Nations creates apeculiar state of affairs. The world now sees Germany, formerly an adherent to the League, throwing its teachings aside, and the United States, outside the League, still contending for its principles. It appears, as has appeared millions of times before, that the thing that counts is what is really in the heart, and not an outward manifestation of approval or opposition. Extreme nationalism is a distinctly German character, or perhaps it would be more correct to say an extreme nationalism coupled with an outspoken candor which is not usually found in international affairs in time of peace. That spirit worked for Germany's good in the days of Napoleon, though Germany unity as to form of government then was wanting. Under the influence of Bismarck, it brought about the unification of the German state, which was a profitable thing for the Fatherland. Existing conditions, however, are not the conditions of 1812 or even those of the 70's. Then the question was whether or not Germany was entitled to feel at ease in the presence of France as a neighbor. The matter which merits serious consideration just now is whether or not Germany is doing wisely in insisting upon her nationalistic program to the dismay of an astounded, and, it must be admitted, somewhat worried and anxious world.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The initiation last Friday night was well attended. The freshman boys were dressed in knee pants, hair ribbons, lipstick and powder; the girls in short dresses and decorations similar to the boys. They were treated by an electric chair, airplane ride and spanking machine. Tasty refreshments were served, followed by songs and dancing.

Robert Leamon won both World History and Latin contests, with Henry McLeod second in Latin and John Miller second in History.

On Tuesday we were visited by Dr. Paschal, the University of California examiner of accredited high schools.

WOMAN LAUGHS, BUT HOLDUP CONTINUES

HANFORD, Cal., Nov. 2--(UP)—When three masked men, armed with pistols, entered Mrs. Addy Myers' home here, she thought it was a joke played by some of her friends.

She laughed at the bandits. "Com on," she said, "show your faces I'm not fooled."

The bandits protested they really were bad men. They shoved pistols against her body. Still laughing, she turned over $35.

The trio ripped the telephone from the wall and fled.

Mrs. Myers decided it really was a holdup and called police.

Chimney Falls Thru Kitchen

CHICO, Cal., Nov. 2—(UP)—When the brick chimney of her home crashed through the kitchen roof, Mrs. George Shepherd investigated and discovered the building in flames.

Busily engaged in canning fruit Mrs. Shepherd failed to hear the crackling of burning timbers, after the fire had broken out in another part of the house.

The building was totally destroyed.

MOTORISTS MUST MAKE COMPLETE STOP WHEN PASSING SCHOOL BUSES

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 2—The Department of Motor Vehicles today directed the attention of motorists of the state to a section of the California Vehicle act requiring all vehicles to come to a complete stop before passing school buses discharging or taking on passengers.

The department's action grew out of a recent incident in which Elva Woods, 10-year old daughter of Mrs. Robert Woods of Hemet, Riverside County, was struck by a passing car and seriously injured as she dashed from behind a school bus toward the opposite side of the street. The girl received a possible fractured skull.

All school buses in the state are being painted a bright yellow to call the attention of motorists to them.

Members of the California Highway Patrol have orders to arrest all persons who fail to obey the law.
